The use of your personal details

We use your personal information in a variety of ways, as explained below.

To deliver the products and services you request

We need to process your personal information so that we can manage your account or booking, provide you with the products and services you need, and assist you with orders and any refunds you may require.

To manage and improve our products, services and day-to-day operations

We use personal information to manage and improve our products, websites, mobile apps, loyalty and customer management programmes as well as other services.

To protect your personal information and to detect and prevent fraud, other crimes and the misuse of services we monitor how our services are used. This helps us ensure that you can safely use our services.

We may use personal information to respond to and manage security incidents, disruptions or other similar occurrences. These may, inter alia, be medical or insurance-related in nature.

We may use personal information to conduct market research and internal development, as well as develop and improve our product range, services, shops and IT systems, security, know-how and methods of communication with you.

We use surveillance camera records to maintain the safety of anyone working or visiting our stores, business premises, and other buildings, as well as to detect, prevent, and prosecute offences. We may also rely on the images to exercise and defend our legal rights.

To contact and interact with you

We want to better serve you as a customer. So if you contact us, for example, by email, mail, telephone or social media, we may use personal information on you to understand and address your concerns as quickly as possible.

We have to process your personal information in order to manage advertising campaigns, promotions and competitions you choose to participate in. These include those that we organise together with our suppliers and trading partners, for example, if you win a prize.

Sometimes we may wish to invite you to participate in customer surveys and other market research activities performed by the TUI Group and other organisations for your benefit.

To help us better understand you as a customer and provide you with services and marketing communications (including online advertising tailored to your interests), we may collect the personal information we obtain when you make purchases in a store and combine them with personal information collected through our web pages, mobile apps, and other sources.

We do not sell your personal data to third parties.

Marketing measures with your consent

From time to time we may wish to send you offers and news about our products and services in various ways, such as by email, by Messenger or by phone. Also, we may wish to send you information about products and services of other companies that we believe could be of interest to you. We will only do so if you have previously agreed to receive such marketing communications.

When you book or sign up with us, we ask you if and through which channel you would like to receive marketing communications.

We also ask you if you would like to receive marketing communications from other companies in the TUI Group and if we may pass the data on to the companies in the TUI Group.

We re-verify your contact information provided to us online. To do so we ask you, for example when registering for email marketing, to confirm the information using the double opt-in procedure. This means that we will not send you email marketing communications until you activate the link sent. A similar procedure is used for advertising via SMS or Messenger.

You may revoke your consent to marketing communications at any time, online, over the phone, or using a link that activates your cancellation of a subscription, for example, for newsletters in our marketing emails, or by using the STOP option in the speed dial number in our marketing SMS or by writing using the following online form at <https://www.tui.com/service-kontakt/anliegen-zu-ihren-kundendaten/werbeerlaubnis-entziehen/>). You may withdraw your consent in whole or in part. If you no longer wish to receive advertisements for a specific channel (e.g. telephone), you can notify us, and you can issue a revocation for all granted consents for marketing purposes. You can also separately revoke a separate consent to marketing communications by companies in the TUI Group. Of course, the choice is entirely up to you. If you tell us that you do not want to receive marketing information, you will be missing out on great offers and deals.

However, you might still receive service-related communications from us. For example, confirmation of bookings you make with us and important information about the use of our products and services.

Product recommendations by email

As a customer of TUI Deutschland GmbH you will receive regular product recommendations from us by email. You will receive these product recommendations regardless of whether you have subscribed to a newsletter or consented to email marketing communications or not. In this way we want, on the basis of your recent purchases from us, to provide you with information about products from our offering that you may be interested in. We comply strictly with all legal requirements.

Product recommendations by email are sent on the legal basis of Article 6(1)(f) GDPR and may also be sent to our customers by email within the scope of Section 7 (3) of the German Law Against Unfair Competition (UWG). Whenever your contact data is used for advertising purposes, we expressly draw your attention to your right to object, which you can exercise at any time simply and unbureaucratically.

If you no longer wish to receive product recommendations by email from us, you can cancel this at any time. Of course, you will find a unsubscribe link in every email. It is also possible to send a message via the online form at <https://www.tui.com/service-kontakt/anliegen-zu-ihren-kundendaten/werbeerlaubnis-entziehen/>.

To personalise your experience

We want to ensure that marketing communications (including online advertising) related to our products and services as well as those of our suppliers, trading partners and the TUI Group are tailored to your interests.

We use the personally identifiable information you provide to better understand your interests so that we can try to predict which other products, services and information you might be most interested in. This allows us to tailor our communications to make them more relevant to you. We use existing information such as email receipt and read confirmation, computer and Internet connection information, operating system and platform, your order history, your service history, the date and time you visited the homepage, products that you viewed. We use this information exclusively in a pseudonymised form. This analysis and evaluation of the data help us to better understand you as a customer and allows us to offer you personalised offers and services. Our goal is to make our advertising more useful and interesting for you, in other words, offer you products and services that best meet your needs as a customer.

If you do not wish to receive a personalised service, for example, if you do not wish to receive a personalised newsletter from us, you can cancel personalised advertising any time you wish, e.g. over the phone, in writing or by email (e.g. to Datenschutz@tui.de). In this case, you will continue to receive non-personalised standard advertising. You can of course also cancel/revoke your consent to our marketing communications as a whole at any time. We will update your information as soon as possible.

Market research

We highly value your opinion. To improve our products and services we may contact you for market research purposes. You always have the choice as to whether to participate in our market research or not.

Detailed information on the data collected in the questionnaire, in particular on anonymous evaluation, is given in detail in the accompanying information. The legal basis here is Article 6(1)(f) GDPR, as we have a vital interest in these evaluations and the improvements to our services based on them.

If customer satisfaction surveys are sent to you by email, we either have your explicit advertising consent in accordance with Article 6(1)(a) GDPR or we may also email you as our customer within the scope of Section 7(3) UWG. If you do not wish to receive the questionnaire, simply let us know by sending an email to Datenschutz@tui.de

Sharing personal information with suppliers and trading partners

To provide you with the products and services you require we have to share personal information about your booked travel services with providers, including airlines, hotels and transport companies.

We also work with carefully selected providers who perform specific functions for you. For example, with companies that help us with IT services, data storage and linking, marketing, market research, payment processing and the provision of products and services.

We may need to share personal information to safeguard or defend our legal rights; this includes the transfer of personal data to third parties in order, e.g. to prevent fraud and reduce the risk of default.

When we share personal information with other organisations we require them to keep the information secure. They may not use your personal information for their own marketing purposes.

We only share the minimum amount of personal information necessary that enables our suppliers and trading partners to provide their services to you and us.

If it is necessary for the implementation of your travel request, the transfer of data to such third countries is also lawful in accordance with Article 49(1)(b) GDPR.

Sharing personal information with government agencies

To be able to travel it is sometimes mandatory (required by law in the country of departure and/or in the destination country) to disclose and process your personal information for immigration, border control, security and counter-terrorism purposes, or any other purpose we deem reasonable.

Some countries only issue travel authorisation if you provide enhanced passenger information (for example, Caricom APIS data and US Secure Flight Data). These requirements may vary depending on your destination and we recommend that you check this on a case-by-case basis. Even if it is not mandatory, we are happy to assist you.

We may share the necessary minimum amount of personal information with other authorities if the law requires us to do so or if we are legally permitted to do so.

Sharing personal data within the TUI Group

With the exception of services with their own privacy notices that do not refer to this privacy notice our privacy notice applies to all services offered by the TUI Group.

TUI Deutschland GmbH is a wholly-owned subsidiary of the TUI Group, which has its registered office in Hanover. Further information on the Group companies can be found at:

<https://www.tuigroup.com/>.

We may share the necessary minimum amount of personally identifiable information with other TUI Group companies, for example, to provide the products and services you request, manage and improve our products, services and day-to-day operations; if necessary, personalise your travel experience, contact you and interact with you and, if permitted and appropriate, for marketing or market research purposes.

We may also share personal information with other companies if there are contractual agreements with them. In such cases we dispose of or transfer our services or our rights and obligations we may have with you under a contractual agreement. If such transfer or disposal occurs, the company receiving your personal information may use your information in accordance with this privacy notice.

We may receive personal data from you from other companies in the TUI Group or share it with them for the following purposes:

- To provide services (including making and managing bookings or processing payments)
- To provide customer service
- To detect, prevent and investigate fraudulent and other illegal activities and data breaches
- For analysis and product improvement purposes
- For individual offers, for sending advertising with your consent or otherwise if permitted by applicable law

These purposes relate to our legitimate interest in receiving and disclosing your personal information.

To ensure compliance with applicable laws TUI Deutschland GmbH refers, where applicable, to compliance with legal obligations (such as lawful inquiries from law enforcement authorities). In addition, all companies within the TUI Group may have to exchange personal customer data in order to ensure that all users on their online platforms are protected against fraudulent activities.

Protecting your personal data

We know how important it is to protect and manage your personal information. We take appropriate security measures to help protect your personal information from accidental loss and unauthorised access, use, alteration and disclosure.

However, the security of your data also depends on you. For example, if we have given you a password to access certain services or you have chosen one, you are responsible for keeping this password secret.

The personal data we collect from you may possibly be transferred to and stored in a country outside the European Economic Area (EEA). Your personal data may also be processed by companies operating outside the EEA that work for us or one of our suppliers. We take appropriate precautions to ensure that your personal information is adequately protected and that it is treated in accordance with this privacy notice. As a rule these protections include corresponding contractual clauses, e.g. standard contractual clauses approved by the European Commission, as well as appropriate security measures.

Data storage

Your personal data will be deleted as soon as they are no longer required for the purposes mentioned. If necessary, however, we may be obligated to continue to store your data until the end of the statutory storage periods, as a rule 6 to 10 years, enacted by the legislative or supervisory authorities in line with the German Commercial Code, the German Tax Code and the German Money Laundering Act. In addition, we may retain your data until expiry of the statutory limitation periods (i.e. 3 years as a rule, but in individual cases also up to 30 years) to the extent necessary for the assertion, exercise or defence of legal claims. Thereafter, the corresponding data will be routinely deleted.

If data are needed after this period for analytical, historical or other legitimate business purposes, we will take appropriate measures to anonymise that data.

About cookies and similar technologies

Cookies are small data files that allow a website to collect and store a range of data on your desktop, laptop or mobile device. Cookies help us provide important features and functionality on our websites and mobile apps, and we use them to improve your customer experience. Please also note our separate Cookie Notice.

Links to other websites

Our websites or mobile apps may contain links to websites of other organisations that have their own privacy notices. Please be sure to carefully read the terms of service and privacy notice before posting personal information to any other organisation's website, as we assume no responsibility or liability for the websites of other organisations.

Social media features

Our websites or mobile apps may feature social media such as Facebook, Twitter, Google+ or Pinterest, which have their own privacy notices and policies.

On our websites we use the following plugins: Facebook, Twitter and GooglePlus. If you do not want social networks to collect data about you through active plugins, you can choose to block third-party cookies in your browser settings. Then the browser does not send cookies to the server for embedded content from other providers. With this setting, however, in addition to the plugins other cross-page features may not work.

If these plugins are activated, your browser establishes a direct connection with the servers of the respective social network as soon as you access a website that is part of our internet presence. The content of the plugin is transmitted by the social network directly to your browser and incorporated by the browser into the webpage. The embedded plugins allow the social networks to receive the information that you have accessed the corresponding page of our website. If you are logged in to the social network, this can assign the visit to your account. If you interact with the plugin, for example, press the Facebook “Like” button or leave a comment, the corresponding information is transmitted directly from your browser to the social network and stored there. To find out more about the purpose and scope of the data collection and the further processing and use of the data by social networks as well as your related rights and settings options for the protection of your privacy, please refer to the privacy policies and notices of the respective networks or websites. The links can be found below.

Even if you are not logged in to the social networks, websites with active social plugins can send data to the networks. An active plugin creates a cookie with an identifier each time the web page is called up. Since your browser sends this cookie without being asked every time you connect to a network server, the network could in principle create a profile about the websites the user identified by the identifier has visited. It would be possible to associate this identifier with a person, for example, when later logging in to the social network.

Our website uses social plugins (“plugins”) from the social network facebook.com, operated by Facebook Inc., 1601 S. California Ave, Palo Alto, CA 94304, USA (“Facebook”). If you click on the Pinterest “Pin it button” while logged in to your Pinterest account, you can link the contents of our pages to your Pinterest profile. This allows Pinterest to associate your visit to our pages with your user account. We wish to point out that we are not aware of the content of the transmitted data and their use by Pinterest.
